Encounters with the Land

AMERICAN DEPICTIONS FROM THE 17TH CENTURY TO THE PRESENT

"Oh my America, my new-found-land!" With those words, a foreigner writing about his beloved in the 17th century captured the essence of America's relationship to the land: an enduring and evolving fascination with its power and beauty. Whether new topography to be explored, a land of plenty and potential to be treasured, a vehicle and metaphor for a spiritual reality more potent than visual depictions, an inspiration for formalist explorations, or an emblem for the country's identity, since 1609

American artists (whether native born or emigrant) depicted and expressed the power, majesty and significance of the land—both our own and foreign—for this country's citizenry.

Topics to be considered include: early topographical explorations (White's drawings), the Hudson river painters (Cole, Church), luminism (Kensett), depictions of the land as a spiritual metaphor and conduit (Inness), the realist exploration of man's encounters with nature's power (Homer); the modernist exploration of the formal, abstract beauty and power of nature (O'Keeffe), the regionalist expression of Earth as a bedrock for the American spirit (Curry, Wood), and the contemporary exploration of the power of the land to evoke emotion and memory (the Wyeths and Stephen Hannock). We also explore challenges in conserving, caring for and presenting these works.

We gratefully acknowledge the generous support of Adelson Galleries, Babcock Galleries, Bear, Stearns & Co. Inc., Christie's, Godel Fine Art, Kennedy Galleries, New York, Katherine and Frank Martucci, The Small Family Foundation, Sotheby's, Spanierman Gallery, LLC, and The Exeter Group.

This conference is dedicated to Harry L. Koenigsberg, who was involved in, and devoted to, the study of American art for over forty years, and shared this passion with his friends and descendants.

Presenters

Lisa Koenigsberg, conference director; and adjunct professor of arts, NYU School of Continuing and Professional Studies, she launched the series of annual NYU conferences on American art. Former positions include: director, Programs in the Arts, NYU School of Continuing and Professional Studies; assistant director for project funding, Museum of the City of New York; executive assistant, Office of the President, American Museum of Natural History; architectural historian, New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission; and guest curator, Worcester Art Museum and Yale University Art Gallery. Her writings have appeared in books and journals, among them The Gilded Edge: The Art of the Frame (2000); Architecture: A Place for Women (1990); The Architectural Historian in America (1991); the Archives of American Art Journal, the Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians; and the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society.

Kevin J. Avery, associate curator, Department of American Paintings and Sculpture, The Metropolitan Museum of Art and adjunct assistant professor, Art Department, Hunter College, City University of New York. His doctoral dissertation considered the panorama and its manifestations in American landscape painting. He is the co-organizer (with F. Kelly) of "Hudson River School Visions: The Landscapes of Sanford R. Gifford," the exhibition seen in fall 2003 at The Metropolitan Museum of Art, and subsequently at the Amon Carter Museum and the National Gallery of Art in Washington. He is also editor and co-author of the accompanying publication. In 2002 he edited and co-authored American Drawings and Watercolors in The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Volume I; other exhibitions and catalogues that he has written or to which he has contributed essays are Art and the Empire City: New York, 1825 – 1861, American Tonalism, and Church's Great Picture: The Heart of the Andes. He is curating and preparing the exhibition catalogue for "Treasures from Olana: Landscapes by Frederic Edwin Church," which begins a two-year tour this June.

Adrienne Baxter Bell, art historian, she has received degrees in art history from Smith College, the Institute of Fine Arts, and Columbia University, where she is currently a Ph.D. candidate in American art history. She received numerous awards for her work, including the Sheila and Richard Schwartz Fellowship at the Smithsonian American Art Museum. The author of George Inness and the Visionary Landscape (George Braziller, 2003), she curated an exhibition of the same name for the National Academy of Design, New York, which traveled to the San Diego Museum of Art in 2004.

Sarah E. Boehme, curator, Whitney Gallery of Western Art, Buffalo Bill Center since 1986. A member of the examination committee for the catalogue raisonné on Frederic Remington, she is coordinating an exhibition on William Ranney to be accompanied by a published catalogue raisonné, and is developing a plan for ongoing maintenance of the Ranney Catalogue. In 2000, "John James Audubon in the West: The Last Expedition: Mammals of North America," opened at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center; Boehme was curator and co-author of the exhibition catalogue. In 1998, she co-curated the Museums West exhibition "Powerful Images: Portrayals of Native America" and contributed an essay to the exhibition catalogue. She wrote the exhibition catalogues "Whitney Gallery of Western Art"; "Absarokee Hut: The Joseph Henry Sharp Cabin"; Buckeye Blake: Art on the Western Front"; and "Rendezvous to Roundup: The First 100 Years of Art in Wyoming." She was co-author of "Seth Eastman: A Portfolio of North American Indians," "Buffalo Bill's Wild West," and "Frontier America: Art and Treasures of the Old West from the Buffalo Bill Historical Center." She received the Fort Union Fellowship for research (1998) and the Friend of Arts Education award from the Wyoming Arts Education Alliance (1997); she was a Smithsonian Fellow.

Tina Dickey, editor, Hans Hofmann Catalogue Raisonné, artist, and independent scholar; she is the author of a forthcoming book on Hofmann's schools and teaching and of Hans Hofmann (with H. Friedel, 1997, 1998), and she edited Selections from the Journals of Myron Stout (2005). She has contributed essays to Hans Hofmann: The Chimbote Project (X. Costa, ed., Museu d'Art Contemporani de Barcelona, with ACTAR, 2004); Seeing Red: On Nonobjective Painting and Color Theory (M. Fehr and S. Wurmfeld, eds., 2004); Hans Hofmann (J. Yohe, ed., 2002); and Münchener Moderne: Kunst und Architektur in der Zwanziger Jahre (Dr. F. Biller, A. Günthor and S. Krämer, eds., 2002). The oral history she compiled on Hofmann's theories and teaching methods is now in the papers of the Renate, Hans and Maria Hofmann Trust in the Archives of American Art. Among the exhibition catalogues she has written are: Myron Stout: Paintings, c. 1950 (Joan T. Washburn, 2005); A Search for the Real (Ameringer Yohe Fine Art, 2005); Joseph Plaskett: New Paintings (Bau-Xi Gallery, 2004); From Hawthorne to Hofmann: The Provincetown Artists Colony, Vignettes 1899 – 1945 (Hollis Taggart Galleries, 2003 – 04); and James Gahagan: Retrospective of a Colorist (Clarke Galleries, 2000). An artist who has exhibited her work for two decades in New England, she has received fellowships in visual art at Vermont Studio Colony and Cummington Community of the Arts.

Charles C. Eldredge, Hall Distinguished Professor of American Art and Culture, Department of Art History, University of Kansas; formerly: director, National Museum of American Art, Smithsonian Institution (1982 – 88), director, Spencer Museum of Art, and professor, Department of Art History, University of Kansas (1971 – 82). Among his publications are John Steuart Curry: Painting Modern American History (Morris Museum of Art, forthcoming); Tales from the Easel: American Narrative Paintings from Southeastern Museums, circa 1800 – 1950 (2004); The Floor of the Sky: Artists and the North American Prairie (University of Nebraska, Geske Lectures, 2000); Reflections on Nature: Small Paintings by Arthur Dove, 1942 – 1943 (1997); Georgia O'Keeffe, American and Modern (1993); Pacific Parallels: Artists and the Landscape in New Zealand (1991); Georgia O'Keeffe (1991); American Originals: Selections from Reynolds House, Museum of American Art (with B. Millhouse, 1990); and Art in New Mexico, 1900 – 1945: Paths to Taos and Santa Fe (with J. A. Schimmel and W. H. Truettner, 1986). He serves on the editorial board of American Art (the Smithsonian journal that he founded in 1987), as an advisor to the Henry Luce Foundation's art programs (1982 – present); and as a trustee of the Amon Carter Museum (2003 – present).

Eric Gordon, head of painting conservation at the Walters Art Museum, has written on subjects ranging from ancient Chinese wall paintings to Giovanni di Paolo's painting techniques to the development of panel treatment philosophies in the 20th century. He is the recipient of the American Academy's Rome Prize and made a study of comparative Italian retouching methods. Recently, he directed research and a collaborative team investigating a lost George Inness masterpiece that resulted in a PBS documentary.

Stephen Hannock, a painter whose work references the American landscape tradition. He lives and works in New York City and Williamstown, MA. Recent one-person exhibitions have taken place at: McKenzie Fine Art (with catalogue), Michael Kohn Gallery (with catalogue), and Meredith Long and Company (all, 2002); John Berggruen Gallery and Winston Wachter Fine Art (both 2001); James Graham & Sons and Quint Contemporary Art (both 2000). In 1995, "After Church, After Cole: Stephen Hannock's Oxbow" was held at the Timkin Museum of Art (catalogue). His recent group exhibitions include "Changing Prospects: The View from Mount Holyoke," Mount Holyoke College Art Museum (2002); the traveling exhibition "The American River," (2002 – 04); "Fluid Flow," James Graham & Sons; "Out-of-Doors," Adam Baumgold Fine Art; "Landscape 2000: Late 20th Century American Landscape Painting," University of Wyoming Art Museum; "Transcending Earth and Sky," University Art Gallery, San Diego State University; and "Landscape," Winston Wachter Fine Art (all in 2000). His work has been discussed in numerous publications and is featured in the following collections: The Metropolitan Museum of Art; Smith College Museum of Art; Museum of Contemporary Art, San Diego; Worcester Art Museum, Worcester, MA; Williams College Museum of Art; Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; Museum of Fine Arts, Houston; Dayton Art Institute: Reader's Digest Collection; Smithsonian American Art Museum; Albany Institute of History of Art; and Grand Rapids Art Museum. He has also done set design for both opera and dance as well as other installation work. Recipient, Academy Award for Special Effects for "What Dreams May Come."

Lynda Roscoe Hartigan, chief curator, Peabody Essex Museum (PEM) in Salem, MA; prior to joining PEM in 2003, she was chief curator of the Smithsonian American Art Museum (SAAM), Washington, DC. Her research specialties in modern art, Joseph Cornell, American folk and outsider art, and African-American art have resulted in numerous exhibitions and publications since the mid-1970s. As the founding curator of the Joseph Cornell Study Center at SAAM (1978), Hartigan organized and administered this repository of the artist's voluminous studio effects, library, and artworks. She wrote the first biography of Cornell for Joseph Cornell (K. McShine, ed., 1980) published for the artist's retrospective organized by The Museum of Modern Art. In 1982, she organized "Joseph Cornell: An Exploration of Sources" at SAAM. Hartigan's essay "Joseph Cornell's Explorations: Art on File" appeared in Joseph Cornell/Marcel Duchamp...in Resonance, published with the exhibition that she and a curatorial team organized for The Menil Collection and the Philadelphia Museum of Art (1998). She was the scholarly advisor to and principal author for the book, Joseph Cornell: ShadowPlay/Eterniday and its companion DVD, The Magical Worlds of Joseph Cornell, co-published in 2003 by the Voyager Foundation and SAAM. She is curating the forthcoming traveling retrospective, "Joseph Cornell: Navigating the Imagination," co-organized by SAAM and PEM (2006); the accompanying book will be published by Yale University Press.

Eleanor Jones Harvey, chief curator, Smithsonian American Art Museum (SAAM), where she manages the curatorial and conservation departments. She is overseeing the reinstallation of the SAAM collection for the Museum's reopening, scheduled for July 4, 2006. Previously, she served as curator of American art at the Dallas Museum of Art (1992 – 2002), having been assistant curator of American paintings at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (1989 – 91). In 1998, she organized "The Painted Sketch: American Impressions from Nature, 1830 – 1880"; the accompanying catalogue won the 1999 Henry Russell Hitchcock Award from The Victorian Society in America. In 2001, she organized "Thomas Moran and the Spirit of Place," featuring works from Dallas private collections, and wrote the accompanying publication. In 2002, she wrote a book and organized the accompanying exhibition, both entitled The Voyage of The Icebergs: Frederic Church's Arctic Masterpiece. In 2003, she contributed to the publication accompanying the exhibition "Hudson River School Visions: The Landscapes of Sanford Robinson Gifford."

Peter Hassrick, a writer and independent American art scholar who focuses on the West; a resident of Cody, Wyoming, he serves a national and international constituency of museums as a guest curator. He is Founding Director Emeritus of the Charles M. Russell Center for the Study of Art of the American West at the University of Oklahoma in Norman. He was also the founding director of The Georgia O'Keeffe Museum in Santa Fe, leading it from inception to opening in 16 months. For 20 years prior to that, Hassrick served as the director of the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody. His books include Frederic Remington (1973); The Way West (1977); The Rocky Mountains: A Vision for Artists in the 19th Century (1983, with P. Trenton); Treasures of the Old West (1984); George Catlin: Drawings of North American Indians (1984); Charles Russell (1989); Frederic Remington: A Catalogue Raisonné of Oils, Watercolors and Drawings (1996, with M. Webster); The Georgia O'Keeffe Museum (1997); The American West: Out of Myth, Into Reality (2000); Remington, Russell and the Language of Western Art (2000); Gordon Snidow: My Story (2002); and Drawn to Yellowstone: Artists in America's First National Park (2002).

Patricia Hills, professor of art history, Boston University; from 1980 – 89, she also served as the director of the Boston University Art Gallery. She has also taught at York College; the Graduate Center of the City University of New York; Columbia University; NYU's Institute of Fine Arts; and the University of Wyoming. From 1972 – 87, she was associated with the Whitney Museum of American Art, first as a guest curator, then as associate curator, and finally as adjunct curator. Her scholarship ranges from 19th-century genre painting to 20th-century art and politics, and includes African-American art. Her books and exhibition catalogues include: Eastman Johnson (1972); The American Frontier: Images and Myths (1973); The Painters' America: Rural and Urban Life, 1810 – 1910 (1974); Turn-of-the-Century America: Painting, Graphics, Photographs, 1810 – 1910 (1977); The Figurative Tradition and the Whitney Museum of American Art (co-curated with R. James (Jamie) Browning Wyeth, a third-generation American artist who paints the rural landscape, man's intrusion on it, and local people in their relationship to nature. The son of Andrew Wyeth, legendary figurative painter, and grandson of Newell Convers Wyeth, renowned illustrator, he was born in Wilmington, Delaware, just south of Chadds Ford, Pennsylvania, where he grew up and still lives part of each year. By the time he was 18, Wyeth's paintings were in the Wilmington Society of Art, the William A. Farnsworth Library and Art Museum and several private collections. In the late 1960s and early 1970s, he was commissioned to paint the portraits of Delaware Governor Charles L. Terry and the late President John F. Kennedy. In the late 1960s, Wyeth took part in Eyewitness to Space, a program which recorded the United States space probes, jointly sponsored by NASA and the National Gallery of Art. In 1974, he also sketched Senate and Supreme Court events relating to Watergate, and scenes in Judge John J. Sirica's courtroom. In 1971, his work was exhibited with his father's and grandfather's at the newly opened Brandywine River Museum in Chadds Ford. The Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, held the first full retrospective of his work (1975 – 75), and in 1976, the Coe Kerr Gallery showed portraits he and Andy Warhol did of one another. Among Wyeth's one-man exhibitions since then have been shows at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts (1980); Amon Carter Museum (1981); Anchorage Fine Arts Museum (1983); Portland Museum of Art (1984); and Decatur House (1995). In 1997, The Terra Museum of American Art mounted "N. C. Wyeth and His Grandson: A Legacy." His work is in the collections of the National Gallery of Art; the National Portrait Gallery; the John F. Kennedy Library and Museum; The Museum of Modern Art; Joslyn Art Museum; William A. Farnsworth Library and Art Museum; Delaware Art Museum; and the Brandywine River Museum. He is a council member of the National Endowment for the Arts, a member of the board of governors of the National Space Institute, and a member of the National Academy of Design and the American Watercolor Society.
